STATINTL

U.S. FOREIGN POLICY

Mr. FULBRIGHT. Mr. President, I should like to comment briefly today on certain themes contained in the remarks concerning our foreign policy made by the junior Senator from Arizona (Mr. Goldwater) on July 12. The Senator's views are, as usual, forthright and provocative. They are of special significance, in that the Senator is an acknowledged spokesman and leader of opinion in his party.

The Senator says that our fundamental objective must be "total victory" over international communism. I must confess to some difficulty in understanding the meaning of "total victory" in this age of ideological conflict and nuclear weapons. Certainly the term is a stirring one. It has a dramatic ring. It quickens the blood like a battle call to arms, and stimulates the imagi-
